Historical Sketch Clark-Hoagland Families

For nearly 150 years the Hoaglands, Clarks and Carpenters have intermarried and used the same given names so that it is very difficult to keep them properly associated in one's mind.

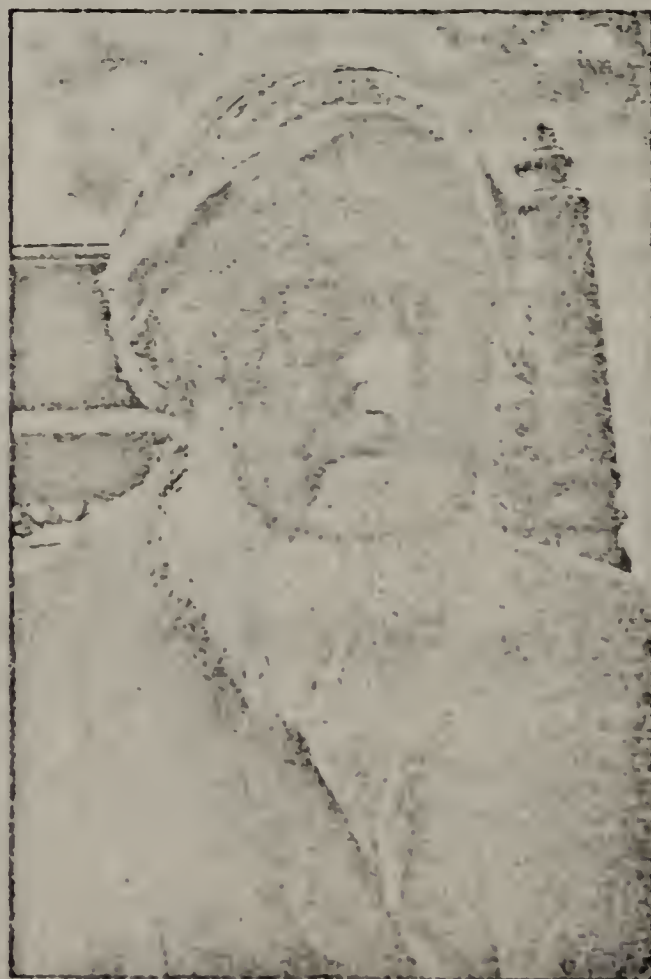

Derrick Hoagland lived in Virginia in Ohio County, which is now Ohio County, West Virginia. He served in the Revolutionary War and was mustered out in Pittsburgh in about 1784. He died in 1790 and was buried in Ohio Co. His wife's name was Elizabeth. He left a will which is on record in Ohio Co., West Virginia. The children named in the will are Mercy, Mary, Rebecca, Richard, Katherine, Isaac, Elizabeth and Cynthia. Also mentioned are Orthea and John Stoneman (probably grandchildren). His son, Isaac, was the father of all the Hoaglands concerned in this account. He was born in Virginia in 1777 and married Polly Carpenter, daughter of John Carpenter, about 1795. Charles, their fifth child, was born in 1806. Sarah, the oldest daughter, was born in 1800.

Charles was probably the first child born in Ohio. History says that Isaac Hoagland was living on the Walhonding in 1805 and was the first settler there. To this union were born no less than thirteen children. All five daughters married Clark boys and spent their lives in Coshocton Co. All seven of the boys married in Ohio and emigrated west, six of them to Sheldon, Ill.

John Hoagland came to Illinois in 1835. He built his home on entered land about a half mile south of the present Mt. Tabor school house. About ten years later he died, leaving two sons. He was buried on what is now the Free Carr farm.

George Hoagland came to Illinois a few years later and built his home about ten rods northeast of the present Mt. Tabor school house. His only son, Isaac, died in the Civil War. His three daughters married and moved to Missouri. Cassie Hoagland Carpenter returned to Illinois and died several years ago in Iroquois.

Charles Hoagland came to Illinois in 1845. He bought and entered land adjoining his brother George on the northeast. Charles had spent some time with his brother John in Illinois in 1835.

James Hoagland followed his brother Charles the same year and entered land north of Sheldon.

The Board of Directors of the Company has the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the report of the Management for the year ending December 31, 1912. The report is a most interesting and valuable one, and it is a pleasure to find that the Management has been able to accomplish so much in the past year. The Board is confident that the Management will continue to do well in the future.

James Hoagland, son of Isaac and Polly Carpenter Hoagland, born March 31, 1818, died April 3, 1901.

Johnson Hoagland came to Illinois a little later and entered land south of the Iroquois river near the Indiana line. He died in 1851 and was buried at Liberty. His widow and three children returned to her people in Ohio.

William Hoagland came to Illinois and kept a store in what was then the town of Texas, on the Iroquois river. He and his wife and two children died there and are buried in the Old Texas cemetery. One daughter survived and married a Kirby. After Kirby's death she married a Cobb and left this vicinity about 1875.

Silas Hoagland, the youngest of the boys and the last to come to Illinois, remained but a short time. His wife died in 1851 and he returned to Ohio, where he married again. Soon afterward he went to California to dig gold, and, like so many others, never returned.

Isaac Hoagland, the other son of the original Isaac, married Polly Clark and emigrated to Bates Co., Mo., where he became a prominent cattle man. His son, John Hoagland, after Isaac's death in 1870, conducted the cattle business on an even greater scale than his father and was one of Butler, Mo.'s greatest men. His daughter, Sis, married Noah Nyheart. She was hale and hearty in 1927, well up in her eighties.

Samuel Clark was born in Ireland in 1773. He emigrated to Virginia in 1791 and soon after married Rachel Clark (no relation). His first five children were born in Virginia. During this time, like all Virginians, he had slaves. About the year 1800 he moved to the Ohio country. History says he lived on the Killbuck in 1801. Samuel Clark was a finely educated man for his day and country. Some of his writing is preserved and resembles steel engraving. He was a Justice of the Peace nearly all his life and a County Commissioner for many years. Clark

John Clark, son of Samuel Clark, born Aug. 15, 1813 died June 25, 1888.

Township is named after him. Although I have no other knowledge about it, a history says that in 1820 Samuel's father and two brothers came to Ohio. Samuel Clark, his wife and several of his daughters and sons were members of the first M. E. Church to be established in the county, which was in about 1820. Four of Samuel's daughters married Hoagland boys and emigrated west. All of his sons remained in Coshocton Co. and did much to make Coshocton Co. what it is.

The Clarks around Sheldon, Ill., are all descendants of four of Samuel's grandsons. Samuel K. Clark, son of Thomas Clark, came to Sheldon in 1867. He was left an orphan when nine years old. After many years of hardships and sorrows he settled on a farm north of Sheldon. He was a tall, handsome, affable man and became one of Sheldon's influential men. He died at a ripe old age, leaving a fine large family and estate.

Alsbury Clark, son of John

James Asbury Clark, son of John and Elizabeth Skillman Clark, born Nov. 26, 1842, died Dec. 24, 1926.

Clark, came to Sheldon in 1868. He married Levina Hoagland in 1870, uniting his fortune with that of the James Hoagland family, of whom I will speak later.

Archibold Clark came to Sheldon in 1869. True to the Clark integrity and thrift he reared a fine family and accumulated much wealth.

Isaac Clark, son of James Clark and half brother to Archibold, was the last Clark to come to Illinois. For a time he lived in Trego Co. and later moved to Sheldon. Nineteen years later he moved back to Ohio, taking most of his family with him. Mrs. Mary Goosey is his daughter.

Samuel Clark, elder brother of the above Isaac, came to Illinois and married Polly Hoagland, the daughter of George Hoagland, and moved on to Bates Co., Missouri.

CHARLES HOAGLAND

The fifth child of Isaac and Polly Carpenter Hoagland was born April 6, 1806, the first of this family to be born in Coshocton Co., Ohio. He married Susan Clark, daughter of Samuel and Rachel Clark, in 1829. He lived on the old Hoagland homestead in Coshocton Co., Ohio, until 1847, when he moved to Concord Twp., Iroquois Co., Ill., near Sheldon. He had accumulated some money and bought the old Charles Hoagland homestead from a man by the name of White for $6 an acre. A small part of it was under cultivation; it had a large log cabin and the present barn had the frame up but was not enclosed, although the oak lumber was on the ground to complete it. Charles entered additional ground around it for $2.50 per acre.

The first six children were born in Coshocton, Ohio. John Hoagland, the oldest of the children, was never married. In 1851 he and his brother Sam went overland to California to dig gold. Sam was 18 years old, born in 1833. It had been planned for Sam's uncle, James Hoagland, to accompany him but James changed his mind and Sam, full of the gold fever, was determined to go alone. At the last minute John decided to go with him. John rode a horse and Sam drove an ox team and wagon loaded with supplies for six months and two bags of money, one silver and the other gold. Charles Hoagland was the GRUB-STAKER. John was in delicate health and died soon after reaching California.

One of the greatest events in the Charles Hoagland family was when Sam came home eighteen years later, a large, middle-aged man with long, heavy, dark whiskers. His father did not recognize him, and for some time had no idea that it was Sam. When he learned that it was Sam he immediately sent couriers to summon the family for dinner the next day, Christmas 1870, altho it was getting dark, there were no phones, and the family was widely scattered. The couriers were out all night, but the entire family was there by 10 a.m. What a feast!—with all the trimmings including the liquid variety. Well, no fatted calf—but there were two turkeys, one goose, and five chickens. That was over 70 years ago, but it is one of my most vivid recollections.

Sam Hoagland returned not to California but to Colorado, where the gold fever was on, and married about 1874. He had one son, Samuel, now living in northern Indiana. Sam died in Sheldon at the age of 87 years, the end of a most unusual and romantic life.

Isaac Hoagland, third child, was born in 1835. He married at his majority and to this union two children were born. Roseta married Jake Allhands and Charles married and was the father of two children. Isaac's wife died when Charles was an infant. Isaac's health failed, supposedly due to consumption, and he left the two children with his father and went to California. His health improved, and for many years he teamed and traded among the mining camps. In the '70s he also went to the mining camps of Colorado, and in time married in the city of Leadville. To this union four boys were born, Charles, James, George and Ab (Absalom). In 1904 Isaac brought his family to Sheldon. He died in 1914.

Isaac Hoagland, son of Charles and Susan Clark Hoagland, born 1835, died 1914 (m. Lenna Buckels, mother of Rogetta and Charles).

Massa Hoagland, the fourth child, married Lloyd Eastburn, the first white child to be born in Iroquois County. The children reaching maturity were Charles, Joseph, James, Minnie, Ella, Maggie, George, Cynthia and Parker.

Sarrah Hoagland, born in 1841, married Michael Strickler. To this union two children were born, Samuel, who died when a young man, and George, who now lives in Sheldon. He and James Eastburn are the oldest living grandchildren of Charles Hoagland. Sarrah died in 1875 and is buried at Liberty.

Cynthia Hoagland, born in 1844, the sixth child and my mother, married Absalom Warrick. There were four children: John (myself), Adda, Mattie and Maggie.

Another event in the Charles Hoagland family was in the fall of 1869. The families of Sarrah Hoagland Strickler and Cynthia Hoagland Warrick emigrated to Bates County, Missouri, in covered wagons. The entire family turned out to see us off, and some accompanied us for twenty miles to our first camp. This was a long four weeks' trip, far from our loved ones, but after a year we journeyed back by covered wagon. Cynthia died in 1939 a few days under 95 years of age, the oldest and the last of the Charles Hoagland children.

James Hoagland, born in 1847, was the first child born in Illinois. He was an infant when his mother died, and Charles married the child's aunt, Cynthia Clark, sister of his first wife, in the fall of the same year. James married Docia Warrick; their children are Ella, Anna, Minnie, Emma, Isaac, George, Frank and Willie. James died in 1890.

Rachel Hoagland, the first of Charles Hoagland's second set of children, married James Fleming when she was 16 years old and died when she was hardly 19 years old, leaving three children: Mary, Charles, and Susie, an infant.

Susan Hoagland, born in 1851, was the youngest child of this large family. She married Henry Eastburn, a cousin of Lloyd Eastburn. Their two children are Samuel and William. Susan died at a ripe old age in Sheldon, Illinois.

Charles Hoagland, the father of the above children, was widely known over Iroquois county, having lived on the old homestead for nearly sixty years. He died there in 1903, at the age of nearly ninety-five, leaving 93 living descendants. He is buried at Liberty cemetery, surrounded by his wives, children, brothers, in-laws, and grandchildren.

LINEAGE OF THE CLARK- HOAGLAND FAMILY

Since writing the sketch of the Clark-Hoagland family printed and distributed at the reunion in 1929, I have discovered two important books in the Newberry Library of Genealogy in Chicago which give the complete lineage of this family. The first is "The History of the Hoaglands in America, edited by Daniel Hoagland Carpenter of Maplewood, N. J., and published by Cornelius Hoagland. The second book is "The Minute Book of the County Court of Ohio County of Virginia" (now West Virginia), from January 1st, 1777 until 1779, when the court was moved to Wheeling.

The first book informs us that the only Hoaglands coming to America before 1800, came from Amsterdam, Holland, and settled in New Amsterdam, now New York. The first was Cornelius Dirksen Hoagland, who came to New Amsterdam in 1638. The second was Dirk Jensen Hoagland, who came to New Amsterdam in 1657. The book tells of more Hoaglands who followed and settled in the same vicinity. From the given names used and other known facts, all were related. The history states, "They descended from the nobility of Holland and came to America to better their finances and not to escape persecution." Most of the Hoaglands were farmers and settled around New York on Long Island and in New Jersey.

The old church records give many Banns, Weddings, Births and Deaths of the Hoaglands, and the court records give records of Deeds, Wills, etc. After the French and Indian War, the Hoaglands began to migrate westward to Virginia, Pennsylvania and Kentucky. At the beginning of the Revolutionary War, Hoaglands were to be found all along the east bank of the Ohio river. Here we find the connecting link between the present Hoaglands of Ohio and Illinois and the Hoaglands of New Amsterdam.

Before taking up the next book I shall discuss the name Hoagland. We are sure that the first form of the word was Van Hooglandt, and for the last fifty years the most common form of the word is Hoagland, both in the East and in the West. Americans are prone to change the spelling of their old world names, so we find that between 1638 and 1941 no less than ten different spellings of the name have been used. For 300 years the most common spelling was "Hogland." On the tombstones in the old family lot in Liberty Cemetery are five different spellings of the word Hoagland. In looking up old records all spellings must be accepted.

The January record of the "Minute Book" of Ohio Co., Va., mentions the names of Clark, Hoagland, Carpenter and Zane. The first three have been connected with our family for 150 years. Samuel Clark did not come to America until about 1790 and Samuel Clark was not mentioned in the Minute Book, but Rachel Clark, whom Samuel married, must have been of the Clarks mentioned, for Samuel and Rachel Clark came from Ohio Co., Virginia. Betty Zane of Zane Grey fame married one of this Clark family and must have been related to Rachel Clark Clark.

Some of the important things to us mentioned in this Minute Book are: On Jan. 6, 1777 Dirk Hoagland, by action of the Court, was made a Lieutenant in the Virginia Revolutionary Army. This makes all his relatives eligible to become Sons or Daughters of the American Revolution. On page 20 is the record of Hoagland and John Carpenter serving on the jury. On page 24 is the record of Hoagland having the right to mark his hogs with a swallow tail in the left ear and an upper half penny in the right ear. On page 50 is the record of Hoagland being made County Commissioner and ordered to build a County Road.

The county records in the court house at Wheeling show that Dirk Hoagland died in 1790 and left a will which mentions his wife, Elizabeth, and children Mercy, Mary, Rebecca, Richard, Catherine, ISAAC, Elizabeth and Cynthia. This record is of great importance to us, for it proves that this Isaac is the one who married Polly Carpenter, daughter of John Carpenter, and connects our family with the Hoaglands of New York. Isaac Hoagland and family moved to Coshocton Co., Ohio, about 1805. The Samuel Clarks and Carpenters had moved to Coshocton Co. about five years earlier. The sketch I wrote in 1929 will give more detail about the life of these families in Ohio.

Things must have been tough in Virginia and may have had something to do with these families' moving to Ohio, as the Minute Book has records showing that the Court had fixed the price of whiskey at $6 for half a pint, a dinner at $10, corn $5 a gallon, oats $4 a gallon, and a bed with a clean sheet at $3 a night.
